BELGIUM'S PLACE IN FUTURE SECURE, SAYS PARIS PAPER

[By Latest Mail]
PARIS, France.—Commenting upon the telegram despatched by the King of Belgium to the president of the French republic after the battle of the Marne, the Temps sees in the same "an act and an engagement," as well as an act of courtesy towards a victorious ally.
"It constitutes," says the Temps, "Belgium's comment upon the treaty of London, and her answer to the German overtures of peace made through the Belgium minister, M. Woez, on the occasion of his mission to Antwerp."
The treaty of London, completed by this declaration of King Albert, marks the birth, in the midst of battle, of the new quadruple alliance, the guarantee of future peace, and when the time comes, concludes the French paper, "the allied powers will not forget the part played by Belgium; and the promise of enduring to the end which she has now renewed, but will see to it that she is given the place which is her due in the fraternal coun-oil of nations which will be the Europe of tomorrow."

A couple of Boston physicians were swapping stories of their odd experiences, when one told the following: "I called upon a lady patient of mine to see a new baby. I found the infant all battered up—black and blue in spots. 'What's the matter with him?' I asked the mother.
"Nothing much," said the parent. "Ye see, he was christened yesterday, and while his daddy was holdin' him the 6 o'clock whistle blew."

"What are you cheering for?" "He stole second base." "How can you accuse him of such a thing; it is still there."—Detroit Free Press.
"Pop, what do we mean by saying discretion is the better part of valor?" "Generally speaking, my son, we mean that discretion can run faster."—Judge.

A shy young man had been calling on the sweetest girl in the world for many moons, but being bashful, his suit progressed slowly. Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the rose in his buttonhole and said: "I'll give you a kiss for that rose." A crimson flush overspread his countenance, but the exchange was made after some hesitation on his part. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room. "Why, where are you going?" she asked in surprise. "To the—er—forists for more roses," he called from the front door.

"You say this part of the country is unique?" "It is," replied Farmer Cornsont, "as a summer resort." "In what respect?" "Well, we haven't any cliff called 'Lovers Leap' nor any ridge known as 'The Devil's Backbone.'"—Washington Star.
